Parched Ulster Now in Fire Danger

By WADE BURKHART

NEW PALTZ

Ulster County, like most of the state and country is dry. The parched lands and area streams without water will attest to that.

Assistant District 13 Ranger Gerald Hamm told The Freeman, "We've got a problem." He may have been understating somewhat.

District 13 of the State Department of Environmental Conservation includes Ulster County and is headquartered in New Paltz.

Another area with a severe problem is District 14, headquartered in Millbrook and covering Dutchess County.

The problem is a bit hard to state in terms of straight statistics. Thanks to the heavy late winter snows and the wet spring, Ulster County is about even for the year in average rainfall. Even the fire danger stations don't tell the true story. Many of them have received adequate rainfall.

But aside from the few isolated areas, and despite the average rainfall figure for the year, this area is in bad shape.

Thursday was a Class 3 day, which means a moderate danger of forest fire. Today is a Class 4 day. There is a very high danger of forest fire.

The reason why is a lack of rainfall in the past 30 days, according to Hamm. This reflected in the Build Up Index, the Fire Spread Index, and the Fire Load Index.

The terms require a little explanation, and Hamm supplied it. The Build Up Index combines the daily factors of temperature, humidity, and wind speed in a figure that represents fire danger.

The figure for Ulster County has risen to 50. This Build Up Index means a high danger of fire, and indicates the "fine fuels" are now in a "transitional" stage.

Special

Fine fuels are grasses, weeds, and ferns, and they act like the tinder in a fire one might start in a fireplace or at a camp. The fine fuels usually give a fire its start. They should be in a "green" stage now, the stage not conducive to the starting of fires. Because of the low rainfall, and the lack of humidity, they have regressed to the transitional stage, the stage usually associated with the early spring; some of the fine fuels are green, the rest are dry and brown and ripe for a fire.

The Spread Index combines the dryness of an area and the wind speed to determine how fast and far a fire can spread.

The Fire Load Index is the combination of the two other indices, and estimates how long, in man hours, it would take to put out a fire that has an hour's head start. The Fire Load Index for Ulster County was up to 11 yesterday, and will be higher today. Yesterday's index, in simple terms, means it would take a man 11 hours to put out a fire with one hour's head start. This is a high figure for this time of year.

The Department of Environmental Conservation has closed seven of its 12 fire danger towers in District 13, and replaced them with airplane flights. There are six flight routes, and because of the high Fire Load Index they were flown three times yesterday.

The problem has been exacerbated by two factors, according to Hamm. One is the lack of humidity in the atmosphere.

If the relative humidity stays above 50 per cent, there are relatively few fire starts, according to Hamm. Below that figure is trouble. It has been below that figure for the past week.

The second factor is the damage done by gypsy moths. They have defoliated sections of Ulster County, most notably the area around Walker Valley in the Town of Shawangunk. When the leaves are off the trees, the sun can beat down on the forest floor, and severely dry the fine fuels there, greatly increasing the danger of forest fire.

Hamm's advice to those who do any sort of open air burning is to use "all caution." He told The Freeman the area is approaching the "blow up" stage. In that stage, an ordinary fire, if not suppressed immediately, can expand into a holocaust.

What the area needs now is rain. A lot of it.

Major Headaches For County Finances

By LYNN MULVANEY

KINGSTON

Ulster County will be $1.8 million in the hole this year due to state cutbacks in funds to localities.

The Health Department and the Highway Department are in difficulty, according to Majority Leader Douglas V. Dye (R-Dist. 2) and the Social Services Department is "having major difficulties."

Calling for "a serious reevaluation of county finances," Dye and Legislature

Chairman Peter J. Savago (R-Dist. 8) asked the County Legislature Thursday night to "require a statement of finances and projected expenses for the balance of the year from all departments."

The resolution submitted at the last moment, asked that all departments give a detailed report of expenditures to June 30, 1971, submit a projected expenditure by month for the period July 1 to Dec. 31 and refrain from hiring a new employee or promoting an employee within the department, unless otherwise approved by the finance committee.

Prior to the meeting The Freeman this week inquired of the Legislature Office concerning state cutbacks in funds and was told no figures were available as yet. However, it was learned from other sources that the welfare budget may run out by early fall, the Highway Department will be hundreds of thousands of dollars in the hole and the Health Department will have to cut its budget about $60,000 in order to keep its financial head above water.

Welfare Commissioner Joseph Fitzsimmons told The Freeman however, the welfare financial picture is too uncertain at this time to make a determination on the state of its budget. He said that the problems with funds in his department "did not" stem from state cutbacks in funds but from the increased welfare case load this year. He pointed out that the new welfare legislation, effective July 1 may relieve the pressure for more and more money and the department consequently may or may not be as bad off as anticipated.

The Planning Department indicated that it is not being cut back by the state but that federal funding has been reduced from $45,000 to $17,000 and as a result the staffing has been cut in half locally from four planners to two planners.

Director Herbert Hecker pointed out, however, the Ulster County Planning Department has already taken advantage of the many forms of funding and has accomplished a water, sewer, recreation, land use and highway plan. "The fundamentals have been whipped into shape," he said optimistically.

Fitzsimmons, speaking further on welfare costs said "there is a possibility we will run short of money, mainly due to Medicaid, hospital and nursing home rates which have increased as have dental and pharmaceutical costs."

On the vote to adopt the resolution, a long roll call was requested.

An impatient Savago concluded that the "problem is not our fault, the state cut the revenues."

The resolution, which was passed 28-3 with two absent, directed the department heads to submit their reports to Savago, who is chairman of the Finance Committee by July 30.

The preparation of a plan for the establishment of a county park on county owned property in New Paltz won unanimous approval of the board but was successfully amended by William West (R-Dist. 12) who requested that a coordinating agency be created to coordinate data relative to parks in the county.

He pointed out that several such parks have been proposed in recent months. He suggested that the Planning Board serve as the agency.

Farley to Become Drug Rehab Center

RHINECLIFF residents for recovery, but will also rely more heavily on professionals than other therapeutic communities because of the youthful age of its population.

The center will initially employ 34 staff members and will offer in addition to drug therapy, general health, schooling and recreational facilities on the large campus of the former military academy. Considered one of the finest educational plants in the area, Cardinal Farley closed its doors last month after experiencing serious enrollment and financial difficulties.

Designed to accommodate 300 boarding students, enrollment at the Northern Dutchess school was 123 at the time of its closing.

The Archdiocese of New York assumed the full liabilities of the school and announced the conversion of the multi-building facility to the drug rehabilitation center.

Both New York City, from which many adolescent narcotic victims will come, and New York State, will assist and work with the Catholic Charities in assisting the young residents at the center.

The Holy Cross brothers are experienced counselors for adolescents. They staff the Pope Pius XII Institute for neglected and dependent children in the Orange County town of Chester.

Hudson Cement Plans Pollution Curb Program

By HUGH REYNOLDS

KINGSTON Hudson Cement Corp. on Glens Falls with "significant results."

North Street in Kingston and results. Bell referred to the agreement between Hudson Cement and the Department of Environmental Conservation as a "major achievement by collective bargaining between the company and the commissioner."

Bell added that if the state had taken Hudson Cement to court the case might have been extended up to five years.

Under the stipulated order system of bargaining, the state submits a list of alleged violations and what it wants the company to do to correct them. Both items are negotiable, which takes time, but as Bell indicated, not as much time as in a court case.

One of the key points in the negotiating between Hudson Cement and the state on this particular case was the depreciation of capital equipment.

is comparatively new but has Agreement has been reached with state and federal tax officials on the amount of that depreciation and the period of depreciation. The capital equipment in this case would be the new precipitators and scrubbing machines for the control of air pollution.

Mayor Francis R. Koenig, commenting today from his office at City Hall, said, "We knew that negotiations were going on. We're happy that a compromise has been reached."

"This is certainly a step in the right direction," the mayor said, "and will be of great benefit to the residents of Kingston, particularly those residents near the cement plant."

"I hope this will prove a forerunner to solve some of the other pollution problems in this City of Kingston," the mayor concluded.

City officials have been aware of the air pollution problem in the Rondout section of Kingston for some time.

About five years ago a special committee of the Common Council was formed to deal with air pollution problems. The Air Pollution Committee has been active ever since, to varying degrees, under its first chairman, Clifford G. Sinsabaugh, and, of late, John E. Finch.

Substantive action, however, came shortly after the Department of Environmental Conservation of last year by the state legislature. Bell met with Henry L. Diamond, the department commissioner, and secured a testing team which came into Kingston in September of last year. It was the first step toward a "negotiated stipulation."

Bell said that a formal statement from Diamond's office regarding the agreement between the department of Environmental Conservation and Hudson Cement can be expected within the next few days.

Many Dead in Chile

Panic Helps Swell Quake Toll

SANTIAGO (UPI)—A minute-long earthquake, Chile's worst in five years, rumbled through the Central Valley Thursday night, knocking out power and communications in a score of cities.

At least 65 persons were killed, with fatality reports still coming in. At least 100 injuries were reported.

National police reported 25 dead in the port city of Valparaiso, 11 in Santiago, 8 in the beach resort town of Vina del Mar, 5 in San Felipe, 3 in Quilpué, 3 in Iliapel, 3 in San Antonio, 3 in La Ligua, 2 in Quillota, 1 in Los Vilos, and 1 in Olmue.

Some of the victims were killed in accidents brought on by panic, others by collapsing walls and falling debris. The long earthquake, Chile's worst in five years, rumbled through the Central Valley Thursday night, knocking out power and communications in a score of cities.

Interior Minister Jose Toha said 30 per cent of the property damage in Chile occurred in the north central valley of Los Andes, where many towns were left without electricity or telephone lines.

He said the roads to Iliapel were blocked by rubble. Los Vilos and Llay Llay, both hit by a strong quake in March of 1965, also were reported damaged severely and had one fatality each.

Eight persons were reported killed in Vina del Mar, five in Valparaiso and several in Salmarca.

Police said they had reports the quake was felt along a 1,400-mile-long stretch of Chile, more than half the length of the narrow, west coast country.

The quake also ranged all the way across South America, with residents of Buenos Aires, 650 miles to the east, reporting they could feel the shock.

By 4:25 a. m. EDT, 13 aftershocks had been counted.

The quake hit Santiago at 11:05 p.m., tumbling rock cornices and shattering window panes. Electricity and communications went out and there was major panic.

Amidst the chaos, ambulances could be heard racing through the streets with their sirens going and there were a number of accidents involving autos which crashed due to the lack of traffic lights.

As soon as the national radio began operating on emergency power—about an hour and a half after the quake—Allende went on the air. He said there was no damage in the southern portion of Chile nor in the major port of Valparaiso, but he did not have any information on northern Chile.

Anti-Jetport Council Requesting Injunction

By HUGH REYNOLDS

NEWBURGH The Hudson River Valley Council, formed expressly to fight the proposed expansion of Stewart Field, was expected to file papers in U.S. District Court in New York City today asking for a declaratory judgment and a permanent injunction preventing the Metropolitan Transit Authority from continuing with its plans regarding the former Air Force base.

Rod Vandivert, director of the council, told The Freeman today that the case would be argued on "literally all aspects" of the MTA's plans to convert Stewart Field into a cargo airport and, possibly, in the future, into a major jetport servicing the New York City area.

The Council is represented by David Sive of the New York City Law firm of Weiner, Neuberger and Sive. Sive has a long record of involvement in environmental projects. He is chairman of the Environmental Committee of the New York State Bar Association, a member of the board of the Sierra Club and Friends of the Earth and a member of the legal advisory committee of the President's Environmental Quality Council.

According to Vandivert, the council has some 300 to 400 members representing a number of organizations and "hence, represents thousands of persons in the Mid-Hudson Valley. Its local offices are on Broadway in Newburgh. The council represents local (lower Hudson Valley) businessmen, homeowners, civic association groups—"a clearinghouse and agent for individuals and groups resisting development of Stewart Field," Vandivert said.

State Senator Jay P. Rolison

Jr. of Poughkeepsie, contacted by The Freeman, said that his sources within the MTA told him that they feel there is no basis for a lawsuit.

"They feel they're operating under a state statute," Rolison said, "and that there is no basis for a law suit, although they said that they expect one."

The state legislature authorized $30 million to the MTA for the acquisition of some 9,200 acres surrounding Stewart Field for a land bank for future development. Another $15 million, according to Rolison was authorized in the state's supplemental budget to extend and reinforce existing runways at Stewart.

In addition the MTA has been issued some $190,000 from the Federal Aeronautics Administration toward a $288,000 master plan for the entire project area. Opponents of the expansion content that the MTA should complete its plans before acquiring land. The authority took steps to acquire the 9,200 acres immediately after the state approved the $30 million for its purchase.

The town of New Windsor just outside of Newburgh will be hardest hit, with some 5,800 acres earmarked for the expanded airport. Another 2,500 acres will be taken from the town of Montgomery. The village of Maybrook will be virtually wiped out under the current plans.

The MTA, however, is still trying to reach some kind of accord with local officials. A meeting has been set up for July 14 at the Stewart Officers Club between Dr. William J. Ronan, MTA Chairman and his staff, and governmental representatives from the Stewart Field area.

Schovel Scores Vandals

By JEAN F. DOLAN

SAUGERTIES

Vandalism at Town of Saugerties parks was scored by Town Supervisor A. Michael Schovel in his opening remarks at the town board meeting Thursday night.

Schovel said that lights had been broken at several recreation areas with damage estimated between $600 and $700. He said that perhaps the town had done too much for the youth and now it was time for them to do something constructive in return.

Communications were received from the Saugerties Police Department requesting clarification of mini-bike rulings and closing hours for Cantine Field. Mini-bikes are not allowed on town property according to previous ruling and this still applies. There are no set hours for Cantine Field but it is supposed to be closed when the lights are out. It was suggested that the entrances should have chain barriers when the field is not in use.

George Benz was appointed acting police chief, replacing Herbert Hommel who resigned effective June 15. Benz was named for June 15 to Sept. 15.

A number of letters were received concerning trailer violations. There are two trailer violation cases in court at the present time, testing whether the ordinance will hold. One violation is a trailer park and the other an individual trailer.

Several mobile home plans were approved by the building inspector and turned over to the board for final approval. No action was taken at the meeting as the board wishes further study of the matter.

Trailers proposed are for Edward Marley, High Woods; Mary G. Lasher, Saxton; Raymond Whitaker, Fish Creek; Robert Johnson, John Joy Road and Vincent F. Esposito, Manorville Road.

Contracts with Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corp. for Windemere and Mt. Marion Park Lighting Districts were renewed.

The board approved Centerville Fire Company's annual bazaar for Aug. 4, 5, 6, and 7 pending report from the board of health.

A letter of appreciation was received from newcomers to the Saugerties area who commended the board for the provisions for senior citizens entertainment and recreation.

A complaint on conditions on John Joy Road was turned over to the highway superintendent, Charles E. Bach.

Sewer Contracts Awarded

TOWN OF ULSTER Sewer contracts and local law hearings were discussed by the Town of Ulster Board at its July meeting Thursday night.

Town Supervisor Carmine Sabino was authorized to pay $75,000 for sewer work completed through May and June by the Budd Randall Inc. firm.

There was considerable discussion on the next contract in the sewer project and it was moved to award the sewer plant to A. J. Costanzi Inc., Kingston as soon as legal details are worked out. Sabino said the ruling from the legal department is expected within 10 days. Specifications call for completion within 540 days and the bid submitted by the Kingston firm listed 700 days for completion.

A public hearing was held on Site Development Law, Local Law 3, on July 1 and as a result of the hearing the town board is preparing revisions to the proposed law. Revisions are expected to be ready within three weeks and a second public hearing will be held 7:30 p.m. Aug. 5 at the Lake Katrine Grange Hall.

The need for extra town constables was discussed by the board. Since the State Police Sub-Station has moved out of the Town of Ulster to the Town of Hurley, residents felt more local patrols were needed. However, Sabino noted that there were no budget provisions for additional constables, plus the impending curtailment of constables by state law effective Sept. 1 would not make it feasible. A letter will be sent to State Police headquarters at Middletown requesting additional patrols by troopers. In other business, election inspectors for Republican and Democratic Parties were approved by the board.

Gunmen Take $142,000, Wound Three in Heist

NEW YORK (UPI)—Three robbers shot two Brinks guards and an elevator operator in the Municipal Building today and escaped by car across the Brooklyn Bridge with a bag containing $142,000 in cash.

The gunmen intercepted the guards shortly after 8:30 a.m. in an elevator as they ascended to the third-floor offices of the Municipal Credit Union with the

An off-duty policeman standing outside the massive building housing city offices spotted the robbers as they dashed to their car with the loot. He said he fired several shots and believed one bullet hit the car as it sped across the nearby bridge.

The condition of the three wounded men was not immediately known.

Final Tribute to 'Ambassador Satch'

NEW YORK (UPI)—The body of Louis "Satchmo" Armstrong was being buried in a neighborhood cemetery here today, far from the impoverished New Orleans parish where as a small boy he sharpened those talents which made him the personification of jazz for millions of admirers around the world.

Services were in a Congregational church in Queens, where the incomparable trumpeter resided with his fourth wife, Lucille.

Only 500 persons — by invitation only — were expected to crowd the church for the final tributes to "Ambassador Satch" who died in his sleep Tuesday morning at the age of 71.

Peggy Lee was flying in from the West Coast to sing the Lord's Prayer at the funeral rites. Ella Fitzgerald was due in from Cleveland.

The list of honorary pallbearers was in its own way a tribute to the man who thrilled crowds in Belgrade, Accra, Bangkok and Moscow with his musical genius and infectious grin.

The list included television personalities Johnny Carson and David Frost, Mayors John Lindsay of New York and Moon Landrieu of New Orleans, musicians Gene Krupa, Guy Lombardo, Lionel Hampton and Benny Goodman, columnists Earl Wilson and Leonard Lyons and composer Harold Arlen.

But Tuesday for the most part, was the day when the unknowns who bought Armstrong recordings by the millions paid their respects to the dynamic singer and musician.

By the thousands they filed past his coffin in a National Guard armory here — many weeping, some genuflecting and crossing themselves.

Armstrong's body was clad in a black silk suit and pink shirt. Under his right hand was his trademark — a white handkerchief he had always used to "mop his chops" — placed there by his wife.

The mourners were black, white, the young and aged of all walks of life.

One middle-aged black woman blew a kiss. A man placed a single rose on the casket. The battered old cornet with which Satchmo launched his career was put atop the coffin by Artie Siegfert "a friend and admirer" of Armstrong.

MOURNERS FOR LOUIE

Nixon on Economy — The White Flag Up

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Nixon administration conceded Thursday that the goals it set forth in January for the economy's performance and for a sharp drop in inflation and unemployment this year now are beyond its reach.

Paul W. McCracken, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisors, formally waved the white flag Thursday before the House-Senate Economic Committee. He had been feuding with the committee for six months over whether the administration's targets were achievable.

Democrats and liberal economists have contended the goals were unattainable without greater stimulation of the economy through tax cuts or higher government spending than the administration would permit.

The burden of McCracken's testimony was that the stubborn and simultaneous inflation and recession which had dogged the administration will remain a severe, although diminishing, problem as President Nixon heads into his re-election campaign next summer.

McCracken said unemployment and inflation "have turned out to be more stubborn" than anticipated in January when Nixon forecast a rapid 9 per cent increase in the nation's Gross National Product (GNP) — the total value of all goods and services produced in one year.

A 9 per cent increase would have produced a $1,065 billion GNP and, the administration said, would have made possible these achievements:

—A drop in unemployment to 5 per cent by the end of 1971 and to 4.5 per cent by mid-1972. Unemployment, with about 5 million workers idled, has averaged 6 per cent for most of this year.

—A drop in the rate of inflation to 4 per cent by year's end and to 3.5 per cent by mid-1972. McCracken said a 4 per cent inflation rate still is attainable.

New NASA Chief

Concerned About Space Gap

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—The new chief of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration says the United States may not have a manned space flight for at least five years after 1973 and he is trying to do something about it.

James C. Fletcher spoke with newsmen Thursday on his first visit to Cape Kennedy since becoming NASA administrator April 27.

America's Apollo moon landing program ends next year and will be followed in 1973 by three three-man flights to a small space station named Skylab. Under present planning, the next U.S. manned flight then would be in 1978 or 1979 when the first reusable space shuttle is to be launched.

"I'm concerned that there is this gap after Skylab," Fletcher said. "We have a lot of skilled people in the manned flight area and we don't want to just let them sit idle while waiting for the next manned flight."

"I haven't come up with any solution to this, but we're working on the problem very hard right now to see what can be done, if anything, during the gap period," he said.

Among the possibilities if funds are available, he said, are a second Skylab mission or a series of orbital earth resources survey missions using rockets and spaceships left from three canceled Apollo moon landing trips.

Another possibility, he said, is a flight in which an Apollo spaceship would link up with a Russian space station like the Salute which the three Soyuz 11 cosmonauts visited for 23 days before they died June 23 during re-entry into earth's atmosphere.

"We were with the Soviets two weeks ago on a very successful meeting in which we spent a lot of time discussing the problems of a common docking apparatus. Both sides are studying quite vigorously the technical problems to be solved to allow our Apollo craft to dock with Salute, or a later version of Salute," Fletcher said.

"I think the only thing neither side has said we will do is to commit the funds to carry out the program," he stated. "This is a decision that must be made at the highest government levels."

Addicts' 'In-Take' Resumed

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—The state Narcotic Addiction Control Commission resumed the "in-take" of addicts to its treatment centers today, though a variety of problems left many officials less than optimistic about treatment programs.

Admittance was halted April 20th as a result of budget cutbacks.

Smaller appropriations are not the commission's only problem. They also face a lack of public confidence and sharper questioning of the role of methadone. This public doubt is compounded by the fears of the addicts, officials point out. Persons needing treatment fear possible permanent economic and social ruin if they apply for treatment. Officials admit they face greater pressure for wider use of methadone. Some physicians in private practice are seeking to participate more fully in the methadone program.

They are now limited to administering the drug. In some cases they may dispense methadone, but in no case may they prescribe the heroin-fighting drug. Some doctors are seeking the power to prescribe methadone just as they prescribe other drugs.

The commission has a limit of $91.7 million for the drug fight after the legislature slashed its budget request of $117.2 million. Salary increases have eaten away more of the budget, leaving less to support bed space.

Admissions were halted when spending cutbacks were put into effect. The commission's bed capacity has been cut by two-thirds—from 6,800 to little more than 2,300.

Officials said shorter hospital stays, some additional stress on methadone and greater reliance on after-care will make better use of their limited bed space. The state group hopes to treat 450 addicts a month, as opposed to nearly 700 monthly before the cutbacks.

Many Mull Welfare Cutbacks

WASHINGTON (AP)—In a clear signal of financial distress, 22 states are implementing or considering welfare cutbacks, according to a federal survey.

Findings of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare study indicate a dramatic reversal of the steady, 30-year climb in public assistance levels for the poor.

"This means one thing," commented an HEW welfare specialist. "States are running out of money and are looking for ways to cut back."

Welfare is a major budget item for most states. State and local governments are spending more than $7 billion a year on the 14 million persons receiving social and medical assistance.

According to the HEW survey, benefit reductions of up to 20 per cent have taken or are scheduled to take effect this year in 10 states. Reductions were listed as possible in an additional 12 states.

Among the 22 states were New York and Minnesota, considered by federal officials as traditional leaders in expanding welfare benefits.

The survey found cutbacks in a number of forms: Alabama has dropped 6,000 families from welfare rolls. Maine eliminated its unemployed-parent program. Rhode Island is dropping two benefit items. Kansas plans to slash payment levels 20 per cent Sept. 1.

The other states listed for definite reduction were Georgia, New Jersey, New Mexico, New York, Nebraska and South Dakota.

By contrast, the report listed benefit increases this year in only four states and the District of Columbia. They are Hawaii, Mississippi, Nevada and Oklahoma. Increases were considered possible in Maryland, Ohio and Wisconsin.

The 12 states listed as considering assistance reduction are Arizona, California, Connecticut, Delaware, Idaho, Illinois, Minnesota, New Hampshire, Oregon, Pennsylvania and Vermont.

State Firing Temporary Workers And Rehiring Permanent Ones

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller's office said today that thousands of temporary employees will be fired to make way for permanent-status state workers laid off earlier this year because of budget reductions.

Some 2,300 permanent status employees will be put back on the state payroll, according to a spokesman for the governor's office, who said three-week termination notices will be issued to temporary employees Monday.

There was no immediate comment from the Civil Service Employees Association, which had accepted a rehiring schedule June 16 when negotiations averaged a strike over the layoffs.

The rehiring move was announced to department heads in a memo from a group of state officials who had been in charge of the layoffs.

The governor's spokesman said that between 5,000 and 7,000 temporary and provisional employees occupying competitive positions would be affected.

But because the number of employees to be rehired was smaller than the number of jobs to be vacated, the spokesman said, some temporary or provisional employees would be put back on the payroll, possibly in different positions.

This, in effect, implements the clarification which we gave to the Civil Service Employees Association on June 16," the governor's spokesman said.

Negotiators for CSEA and the state had reached the accord 23 hours before the 106,000-member union had threatened to strike over the layoffs.

At that time, the state said that the total layoffs accomplished had been 6,057, including 4,657 permanent employees and 1,400 temporary employees.

In the meantime, however, the governor's spokesman said that the state had continued to rehire where possible, thus leaving 2,300 to be put back on the payroll.

At the time of the agreement, a spokesman for the governor said that the rehiring would be made within the existing fiscal framework.

The state began its layoff program in April after approval of a budget of $1.69 billion, $756 million less than anticipated.

Numerous complaints have been voiced by area residents relating to excessive speed of motor vehicles on main streets in various parts of Kingston, including Mary's Avenue, Lucas Avenue, Broadway, Hurley Avenue, Albany Avenue and other streets.

The radar unit will be active in different parts of the city through the summer months in an effort to apprehend the violators.

Fall Opening Set For Empire College

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — For a college with a campus of nearly 48,000 square miles, the "ground-breaking" ceremonies were relatively simple.

As a matter of fact, there weren't any ground-breaking ceremonies Thursday as State University Chancellor Ernest L. Boyer simply announced that the Empire State College would open this fall.

The first two centers will open at Albany and Rochester on Oct. 1 for the new educational concept which can be viewed as a "college without a campus," or as a college in which the "entire state is the campus," Boyer said.

For those purists, New York State's area covers 47,939 square miles.

Boyer said that students in the Empire State program will contact a faculty advisor at the beginning of each semester to decide on a course of study and then pursue the subjects on their own time.

"In some cases a student may return to his advisor or teachers every week, in others they will see them once and then not return until the end of the program," Boyer said.

The students will pay the same $550 a year tuition other SUNY students are charged and when they graduate they will receive the same baccalaureate degree.

Eventually there will be 20 "centers" for Empire State College throughout the state — so that one will be in driving distance of all the state's residents. The present plan is to have a maximum enrollment of 8,000 students, 400 at each center. There will be a general headquarters in Saratoga Springs at an abandoned building on the old Skidmore College Campus.

"Empire State students will work closely with faculty mentors attached to the learning centers nearest their homes as well as with tutors who will provide guidance in course work," Boyer said. "Each student's programs will be worked out in cooperation with his mentor and reviewed by other faculty members."

"Initially, major concentrations and courses will be offered in the areas of anthropology, economics, English, fine arts, geography, history, mathematics, philosophy and sociology," he said.

Boyer said that his office has already received about 10,000 inquiries about the new college. "There is a major interest among adults who never went to college or who dropped out — people who could not come to a college campus nine months a year," he said. "But it will not just be an adult college by any means we have also found the idea popular among students right out of high school."

Boyer said the new college, organized under a $1 million grant from the Carnegie Corporation and Ford Foundation, is an extension of the philosophy that "education is a life long process."

"The old notion of assembly everyone within walls for a given period of time is a misnomer," Boyer said. "By what logic does the student go to a classroom at nine o'clock every morning to hear this man?"

Mayor Announces Survey; Will Check on Bus Routes

KINGSTON — The city of Kingston, in cooperation with the New York State Department of Transportation, will begin a survey of its bus routes on Monday to continue until Friday.

Mayor Francis R. Koenig made the announcement today after meeting with Alderman Clifford G. Sinsabaugh, chairman of the Common Council's Railroad and Bus Committee; Michael S. Perry, general manager of Urban Transit, the city's carrier, and John Garrity of the State Department of Transportation.

The survey will be conducted by seven college-age students on the three routes in the city and on the Ellenville and Saugerties routes when they enter the city.

Bus riders will be asked to fill out a 12-point questionnaire which will include questions such as where the person got on and where he plans to get off the bus.

How he reached the bus stop and how he will reach his final destination after getting off the bus will be asked. It will also be asked how often the person makes the particular trip and for what purpose, shopping, school, business, etc. The person's age will also be asked. In addition it will be asked if a car was available for that trip and how many cars are in that person's household.

The survey will be the first step in a feasibility study of the city's mass transit system.

NEW PALTZ yet been determined, and no recommendation of new Police Chief John Taylor. Taylor will formally take office July 12. A great deal of work was predicted by Moriello in the setting up of the new department. June Prices Show Same Hike as Previous Month

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Wholesale prices rose 0.4 per cent in June, the same as May, and about the average monthly pace for the first five months of this year, the Labor Department said today. The report indicated a little change in the nation's inflation problems. There was no marked improvement, but there also was no deterioration. Increases in wholesale prices usually foreshadow boosts in retail prices after a lag of about a month.

Wholesale prices of groceries and other food ready for sale to the consumer rose 0.7 per cent in June, but that is normal for this time of year. After seasonal adjustment, wholesale consumer food prices were unchanged from May. The overall index advanced to 114.3 per cent of the 1967 average in June. That means it cost $114.30 to buy the same assortment of wholesale goods that could have been obtained for $113.80 in May, $110.30 a year earlier and $100 in 1967. The increase in the over-all index was 0.4 per cent both with and without seasonal adjustment. The seasonal fac-

State Men-Only Bars Losing Their Protection

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Men-only bars will lose their protection Sept. 1 as a result of a law signed by Gov. Rockefeller to prohibit discrimination because of sex in public accommodations.

Exceptions will be allowed only where it is reasonable to bar women—for example, the men's locker room at a public beach. However, the YMCA or the YWCA or other housing facilities may continue policies of renting rooms to individuals of one sex.

The bill was labeled the "McSorley's bill" referring to an incident several months ago when a woman battled her way into McSorley's Old Ale House in New York City, a traditional masculine stronghold. She got a tankard of ale poured over her head for her pains.

Rockefeller's approval of the bill was announced Thursday as he completed work on the bills passed by the legislature. Among the last bills to be signed were those that will: —Extend the death penalty to killers of civilian employees of prisons. Current law applied the death penalty to the killers of police officers—including prison guards—while performing their duty, or to life convicts who kill anyone in prison or while attempting an escape. —Permit a period of silent meditation at the start of the school day. Sponsors had proposed a bill permitting silent prayer but revised it, reluctantly, because of objections. —Authorize the Niagara Frontier Transportation Authority to construct and operate a rapid transit system in the Buffalo-Amherst corridor. The bill contained an appropriation of $86 million. At the same time, he vetoed bills that would have: —Expanded the state's student loan program. The bill was proposed as a vehicle for a deferred-tuition system under which college students can borrow liberally while in college and make repayments over as many as 20 years after graduation, based on future earnings. Rockefeller said the bill was "imaginative" but needed more study. —Prescribed a minimum weekly teaching load for college faculty members in the state. Rockefeller said the bill fails to recognize that the determination of a reasonable teaching load depends on a number of complex factors. —Extended from five to as

The Role of the Press

What is the role of the press in our democracy? The role of the press is to tell the people what is going on. It's that simple to state. It is not at all simple to perform.

When the Supreme Court was faced with a confrontation between the press and the government, the justices were so deeply divided, they vented their differences in nine separate opinions. No one remembers when previously, each member of the court felt he had to state his reason for agreeing or disagreeing with the decision, which went 6 to 3 for the freedom of the press as guaranteed by the First Amendment.

Highly responsible, important newspapers had received classified documents—classified as high as "Top Secret"—and published a part of them. Editors of those newspapers, after reviewing the documents, made the following judgment:

There is nothing in the documents that will risk the lives of our troops, or the defense of the nation; that much of the documents should not be classified; and that people—the public—should know what is revealed in the documents.

Is there no other side of the coin—particularly where classified documents are involved? Absolutely. There are times when secrecy is vital to the welfare of the country. Therein is the problem. Where is the line to be drawn?

If too much information is classified, irresponsible and inept government workers can use classification of documents as a hiding place. They have in the past. They will again. If not enough secrecy is maintained, particularly in defense areas, success in defense of the nation is not possible.

In the Soviet Union, for example, when in doubt about this issue, total censorship is used. In our democracy, when in doubt about this issue, we normally believe it is better to have the people informed than ignorant. The Supreme Court has confirmed this right.

Simply a Space Obstacle

The Soviets have announced that the three Soyuz II cosmonauts died from embolisms, or blood vessel obstructions, caused from sudden loss of pressure in their space capsule through an improperly secured hatch.

This report is the only encouraging thing to come out of the tragedy.

First, it makes more sense than earlier speculation that the men had died from "gravity shock"—heart failure brought on by the abrupt return to gravity after more than three weeks of weightlessness. (Even if this had happened, three different men would hardly succumb at the same instant and without any sign of death throes.)

More important, it means that the cosmonauts did not fall victim to some inherent limitation to man's ability to function in space (and return), that they were not killed because they overstepped some barrier past which men are not intended to go, but that like

America's three Apollo astronauts in 1967 they simply died in an unfortunate—and preventable—accident.

The tragedy will delay Russia's program of putting men into orbit for extended periods while a full investigation of what happened is conducted and steps are taken to see that it cannot happen again in the future.

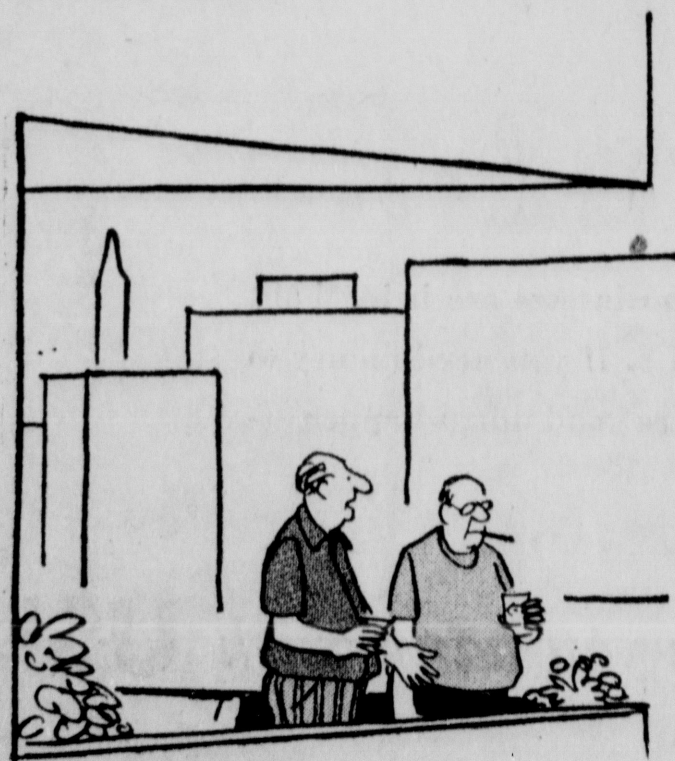

And questions still remain unanswered as to how long men can stay in space and still return to earth's gravity without undue difficulty and after-effects. It may be that the cosmonauts have reached the limit beyond which it is dangerous to go without some means of creating artificial gravity in a space station or some as yet unknown way of bringing men more gradually and gently back to earth.

But this limit is only an obstacle, not a permanent block, to man's continued exploration and utilization of space.

Justice Stephen Field served 34 years, six months and 11 days on the Supreme Court, and Chief Justice John Marshall 34 years, five months and two days, both in the 1800s. Now Justice

Hugo L. Black served 33 years, 10 months and 11 days to the end of June. He has selected his clerk for the next term, when at the end of it, he will have served longer than anyone in history.

'Mood' Drugs Come Under Scrutiny

WASHINGTON — Such popular brand-name drugs as Compoz, Excedrin PM, No-Doz, Nyquil, Nytol, Quiet World, Sleep-Eze, Sominex and Vivarian will come under Senate attack this month. Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., will challenge the efficacy of these pills, poisons and palliatives that are supposed to calm the nervous, cheer the depressed, rouse the drowsy, relieve the sleepless and make the dull sparkle. His Senate Small Business subcommittee will hold hearings July 21, 22 and 23. Medical experts, psychiatrists and government specialists have been invited to tell what they know about "mood" drugs. Nelson's preliminary investigation indicates that some of the most ballyhooed "mood" medicines are really old remedies such as caffeine or new remedies wrongly used such as anti-histamines. (Anti-histamines are put in some sleeping pills not to fight allergies, for which they are medically prescribed, but to cause drowsiness.) Other pills are potent but bring only temporary results. Side effects not mentioned in the small print on the label have also been reported. There is less clinical data on over-the-counter drugs, Nelson has found, than on prescription drugs. But Nelson is even more concerned over the "drug culture" that has grown up around today's tranquilizers and amphetamines. Children exposed to drug advertising grow up believing that an over-the-counter pill can change their moods and solve their problems. The giant pharmaceutical firms have been invited to send spokesmen to Nelson's hearing. At this writing, they had not replied. They maintain, of course, that their drugs are safe and effective when taken according to directions.

Oil and Vietnam

We have tried to pin down rumors that the oil barons encouraged U.S. involvement in Vietnam to protect the offshore oil reserves for them to exploit.

It's no secret that Lyndon Johnson was close to Texas oil interests and that he ran interference for them in Congress. The Pentagon Papers also make clear that LBJ, as President, was preparing to intervene heavily in Vietnam before the August, 1964, Gulf of Tonkin incident.

Signs of oil off the Vietnam coast were discovered as early as 1955. But it wasn't until 1968, four years after the U.S. build-up in Vietnam, that Amper Corporation, an American consortium, began serious explorations in Vietnam waters. Amper conducted its explorations in behalf of Standard Oil of New Jersey and Indiana, Mobil Oil, Gulf Oil, Atlantic Richfield, Phillips Petroleum, Tenneco, Continental Union Oil of California, Dutch Shell and British Petroleum.

Amper estimated that the shores of Southeast Asia contained more oil reserves than the Middle East. The explorations have indicated a huge seabed oil reservoir at the mouth of the Mekong River.

We have talked to inside sources and examined confidential documents in our search for evidence that the oil boys may have been behind President Johnson's decision to send troops to Vietnam. As far as we can learn, the oil interests had nothing to do with LBJ's Vietnam decisions.

Indeed, the government has refused to grant the oil companies any financial guarantees to encourage drilling in Vietnamese waters. AID Administrator John Hannah, in secret meetings, has urged a guarantee to the oil companies but without success.

MAILING LISTS — Military regulations strictly forbid the release of names and addresses for "commercial solicitation purposes." The Army Times has been offered as high as $10,000 for its subscription list, but all the service magazines keep their lists under lock and key. C.Q. Van Orman, an enterprising retired Army officer, has gotten around the ban by advertising as a "military" employment agency, offering jobs for servicemen. Then he sells the names and addresses to insurance companies for $2.50 a name. Van Orman, reached at his Seaside, Calif., home, acknowledged his personnel placement ads used to bring in about 10,000 applicants per month. He found jobs for only seven or eight each month, compiled the rest into mailing lists. The recession has crimped his operation. He has reduced his advertising, he said, and receives only 3,000 to 4,000 applications a month. But this is plenty. Complained Van Orman: "I can't sell anywhere near the names I receive."

UNDER THE DOME

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., wears his bathrobe around the house but not for comfort alone. He keeps cookies in the pockets. Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., has such a weakness for rhubarb that his staff gives him rhubarb pies in place of birthday cakes. He also drinks milk shakes for energy. Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., has a passion for frozen custard. A recent auto trip to West Virginia was routed so he would pass several Tastee Freeze or Dairy Queen stands on the way. He also drinks a lot of diet Pepsi. Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., won't touch carbonated drinks. He believes they're unhealthy, quenches his thirst instead with fruit juices.

Profit-Sharing in Steel

WASHINGTON — Labor and management in the steel industry were told some realistic truths by President Nixon in his conference at the White House on Tuesday when he urged them both to write a new wage contract which would not price American steel out of the competitive world market. For management will not be able to pay better wages without raising prices, though imports of foreign steel at lower prices already have increased substantially.

Steelmakers in other lands can readily compete with American companies, even in this country. The unit labor costs in steel in the United States are at the top point in the world. Among four major competitors—Japan, The United Kingdom, West Germany and France—the highest unit cost is no more than three-quarters of the American figure.

Under these circumstances, in the negotiation of a new wage contract, if bigger prices are imposed here, it will further reduce American export trade and will give foreign steel companies a chance to sell more of their products inside this country.

Union labor naturally wants to get the most income possible every year. But this will not be practicable simply by raising the wage rates, especially since American steel must compete with companies abroad which are paying much lower wages. The only solution really is for American companies to hold their wages and prices at present levels. This unquestionably would lead to larger profits for steel companies. If somehow the workers could be permitted to participate in profit-sharing plans, the competition against foreign products would be effectively fought and the workers here still would be able to get an increase in earnings.

The Nixon Administration is engaged in many conferences with other governments dealing with quotas to be imposed on imports and exports. The hope has been that the United States, by a system of quotas, could limit competition with foreign producers who are paying low wages and can offer their goods in this country at prices under those of American-made products.

A report from the Cabinet Committee on economic policy, read at President Nixon's meeting with steel union and management leaders, said that sales of the domestic steel industry have been virtually stagnant since 1965, "while steel imports have risen substantially." It was noted that unit labor costs increased 5.7 per cent last year, while steel industry profits declined 42 per cent to the lowest level in a decade.

These economic facts cannot be overlooked in a negotiation such as has begun between labor and management in the steel industry. Workers want more income and think there must be ways by which they can receive it. But the import problem has to be met. Unless the price of American steel is held down, the producers in this country will suffer more and more losses in sales and a further decrease in profits. This is why there already has been a demand for tariff protection or the establishment of quotas. But the United States is reluctant to take this course because many American products that are exported might be subjected to retaliatory restrictions.

The President evidently believes that competition is the best answer and that American producers ought to be able to keep their prices down by holding wage levels at lower points and thus increase sales and profits. Presumably, larger incomes would then become available from the augmentation of sales, and some form of profit-sharing could ensue. It seems to be the only way labor can play a part in holding the line yet at the same time benefit from the increased sales that may be expected if prices are held at present levels.

The idea of limiting import quotas and signing various bilateral agreements is being discussed between Japan and members of the European Common Market. It is conceivable that Japan might get a bigger part of the European market and the United States would get less than heretofore if American steel prices go up. The administration is conscious of these possibilities, and the purpose of the President in sitting down with representatives of labor and management in the steel industry was to call attention to all the risks involved internationally in wage and price increases at this time.

The President hopes to turn the eyes of all concerned to possible ways to keeping both wages and prices from rising so that there can be more competition with the other countries of the world which are underselling American companies.

The Saga of Two Broadcasters

A bunch of us were sitting around Gallagher's Steak House one night talking about sports announcers and Bob Considine suggested that we write our votes on a sheet of paper for the all-time greatest announcer and Graham McNamee came up with two votes, Ted Husing came up with four, and I turned in the only vote for a raffish skeleton named Perry Charles.

Charles is long gone, but there was no sport in the world he couldn't butcher. He drank a little to stave off the terror of sudden death and he was on and off station WHN like a drunk riding home on a bicycle. His voice had the tonal quality of slapping boards together.

When there was no news, Perry Charles could make it up. "If, as is unexpected in London tonight, the Prime Minister dies, King George the Fifth will form a new cabinet in the morning."

WHN got the contract to broadcast the football games of Columbia University. These were staged on crisp autumn Saturdays on the edge of the Harlem River in a creaky old stadium called Baker's Field. Perry was called for the assignment, and he said he couldn't announce the games unless he had an assistant announcer so that they could make it sound like dignified conversation.

The office asked who. He picked a columnist who liked football but didn't understand it. Perry Charles and Mark Hellinger made up the team. High in the east side stands, under the eaves, they placed their table microphones, nodded to Graham McNamee and others who addressed networkers, and Hellinger placed a bottle of brandy on the table and Perry Charles unwrapped 20 paper cups.

They were now ready. It didn't matter whether Columbia was playing Cornell or Yale or Princeton, both men became excited at the snap of the ball and yelled. "Sid Luckman has it again—he's on his way. Wait a minute. It wasn't Luckman. It was Cornell's boy, that tall kid with the red hair, whatever his name is." They would turn to McNamee. "How many yards the kid make?" Graham would look stunned, and continue his exciting announcement of the play.

Sometimes, when Columbia won, Perry Charles and Mark Hellinger called for a fleet of Carey Cadillacs and took the entire team, in uniforms and spikes, downtown for a celebration. WHN began to draw a larger audience on radio than it deserved. Home humorists listened for the hilarious asides, then switched quickly to NBC to find out the real score.

One Saturday Columbia was playing Virginia Military Institute. At 1:45 p.m., Perry Charles and the columnist, laden with brandy and paper cups, puffed up the outside stairway, nodded to Ford Frick, who was announcing the game for an independent network, and sat. They poured a drink. "My boss says," said

Charles, swishing the brandy from cheek to cheek, "that last week we had a kid playing 60 minutes who's been in the infirmary a month with a broken shoulder."

"They always getcha on the trivia," Hellinger said. "Now look at this. I invented something." He spread out a large sheet of paper. On the left side the Columbia players were printed. On the right side was VMI. Perry Charles was astounded. "Dammit," he said, "this is a great invention. All we have to do is see who has the ball, pick him out on this sheet, and we got the player. Mark, I'll drink to this."

They drank. And drank. The team captains tossed a coin. Columbia won, and elected to defend the north, or right goal. "Dammit!" Hellinger said into the mike. "We got them listed on the wrong side of the sheet." It didn't occur to them to turn the paper around. As play started, they were both busy erasing, and reprinting the names on the other side.

This called for more drinks. When the sheet was right, the quarter was over the the teams changed sides. The erasing began all over. "The ———!" Perry Charles said into his mike. "I have to go to the bathroom." "Me, too." "I said it first." "Okay, we'll go together." "All right, but who's going to handle the game for us?" "We'll slip the mike on McNamee's table."

They did. McNamee's voice came over WHN; the switchboard was tied up with blinking lights, and the two football experts were dazzling their way down the staircase. NBC called and demanded to know when McNamee went to work for WHN. "I don't know," McNamee moaned. "I thought we got a new station."

The missing genies made it back up at halftime. They had no scores so they made up colleges: "Wet Moccasin 6, Bluebell zero at halftime, friends." Today they have tight ends and quarterback sneaks, but no loose announcers—more's the pity.

Air Flow Key to Cool Summer

things you do to make an air builds up during the day and remains trapped indoors even though outdoor temperatures are dropping.The principle in staying cool is to rid the house of heated night air. Then try to store up that cooler air for the next day.Open doors and windows at that air is exhausted through the louvers.Mount the fan as high as you can, on the second floor in a two-story house. A window on the sunny side is the best bet, closing the other windows on the same side. Open a window on the opposite—the shady side of the house. This way you will be pulling cool air in.Try to place the fan so that the flow of air is across several rooms. Leave basement doors open since the cooler basement air can help the rest of the house.It's important to get rid of the attic air if you can since heat builds up first under the roof of your house. Ridding thehot air—15 or 20 degrees warmer—will do much to make things comfortable.

If you have an air conditioner remember these further tips:Keep it clean. Change the filter. If the filter is permanent, clean it often. Even thereplaceable type ought to be vacuumed often.Buy a unit big enough to circulate all the air in the room.
A room air conditioner cannot cool an entire house. Close the door and let it do the work it was intended for.Green Thumb Offers Tips
On Growing Citrus Plants

By GEORGE ABRAHAM

NAPLES, N.Y.

Home gardeners who raise citrus plants (oranges, lemons, limes, grapefruit, etc.) often are dismayed to find their plants do not flower. This can be due to a lack of summer ripening period, high room temperatures, or a lack of light.Keep your plants outdoors now and syringe the foliage from time to time to keepout aphids, red spider mites and other pests. The so-called Ponderosa lemon is a house plant that produces big edible fruit, some weighing over one half pound apiece! The calamondin or miniature orange has fragrant white flowers, edible fruits one to one and half inches in diameter. All citrus prefer a loose, well-drained soil, loam, sand and peat mixed together.You can start new plants from seeds or cuttings now.
Take 4-inch cuttings from tips and root them in sand orperlite. Or you can sow seed in 4-inch pots of soil any time of year. Plants grown from seed produce nice foliage and blooms but cannot be depended upon for edible fruit.By the way, corn likes plenty of water during the growing season. In fact, all growing plants need water, and most vegetables are about 90 per cent water. That means you must have an even supply of moisture for them—one to two inches of water per week. Throughout the hottest part of the season most garden crops benefit by at least one inch of water a week. To apply the equivalentUsually one application is enough, although some gardeners give two applications. If you want worm-free ears of corn, try the mineral oil treatment.By the way, corn likes plenty

Hints From Heloise

TAKE SOME THREAD AND CIRCLE IN RED

Dear Heloise:
I have read and heard about many different ways to use those cute linen towel calendars, but thought you might like to hear what I do with them.

I embroider a new baby's name and circle the birth date (parents' names optional). Then I keep it for the child's 18th birthday or present the towel, framed, to the new mother.

Also, it is good for a keepsake memento for the bride and groom with wedding date circled. Makes a nice gift at the time of marriage or 10th anniversary, if kept.

I have done calendars for four grandsons, for four consecutive years and will hold them until they are old enough to appreciate them.

On my modest income, expensive gifts aren't practical, but these wonderful towels make very nice keepsakes and the delight expressed when I present one of these calendars is all the incentive I need.

Mrs. Ruth Light

You sure are a darling. This idea of yours is the most thoughtful one I have heard about in a long time.

Bless you with all my heart.
Love,
Heloise

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

Dear Heloise:
For women and girls who, when baking (or cooking anything else for that matter) cannot resist nibbling sometimes to the point where they cannot even enjoy what they have made), simply tape mouth shut with paper tape.

It works perfectly, especially if the special occasion calls for lots of baking. Sweet Toots

Dear Heloise:
I keep a clean wood chisel in my utensil drawer for breaking apart those chops and steaks that are frozen together.

My husband suggested it many years ago after watching me struggle with six pork chops that took the idea of togetherness all too seriously.

Hope you have as much fun reading your column. Being a housewife is really quite a fascinating job, certainly a challenging one if you really want to be a GOOD homemaker.

Mrs. J. H. N.
I did enjoy reading your letter, in fact I enjoy reading all the letters from people like you who are more than willing to make our jobs as housewives much easier. Do write again. Love to hear from you.

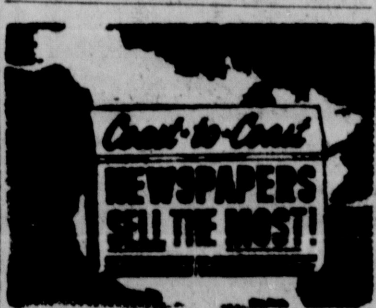

Dear Heloise:
While doing my weekly scrubbing of the bathroom, I noticed the shower curtain needed cleaning also.

So I filled the sink with water and a little bleach and took the bottom of the curtain and put it in the sink.

I just scrubbed away and didn't even have to take it off the hooks.

"Still Thinking"

This column is written for you, the housewife and homemaker. If you have a hint or a problem write to Heloise in care of The Daily Freeman. Because of the tremendous volume of mail, Heloise is unable to answer all individual letters. She will, however, answer your questions in her column whenever possible.

Dear Abby

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

© 1971, by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is that I am always in debt and can't seem to get out. I don't know what to call myself except "stupid," maybe.

My husband makes a good living, but the only things that get paid on time are the rent and the utilities because he pays them. I write checks for everything else and also do a lot of charging. Right now I am overdrawn at the bank, have several unpaid bills staring me in the face and I am scared to death to tell my husband.

I am not extravagant with myself. It's usually something for the children or the house. This is nothing new. I have always been behind in my bills, but this time I can't see my way clear. I'm ready for a nervous breakdown. Is there a solution? I will try anything.

OVER MY HEAD
DEAR OVER: First I will tell you what NOT to do. Don't borrow any money without your husband's knowledge! Then close your charge accounts, hand your husband your check book and tell him about the mess you're in. If he doesn't immediately remove you from the treasury department, resign! You can learn how to budget if you really want to, but until you do, let Hubby handle the family fortune.

DEAR ABBY: Referring to your reply to "TOO SENSITIVE" in which you said it is intended as a compliment, not a put down, when asked, "How come a nice girl like you isn't married?" I think any question along this line is rude and nobody's business. The questioner deserves to be squelched, and my stock reply is, "I didn't have to."

BALTIMORE MISS

CONFIDENTIAL TO "C. J. J.": Herbert put it this way. "He who cannot forgive others, breaks the bridge over which he himself must pass, for he is to ever reach heaven, for everyone has the need to be forgiven." Try a little harder.

Guests, Parties Filling Social Scene in Ulster

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene LaPlante of Colton, Calif., are visiting Ulster County this week. They are guests at the home of Mrs. Aleksander Narel in West Hurley. The West Coast visitors, who will be traveling to Newfoundland, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island, have been feted also by friends Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Crucetti of West Hurley and Mrs. Edward Zietek of Saugerties.

Mr. LaPlante, former director of art at Saugerties High School, left his Ulster County position in 1961 to accept the position of director of art with Colton High School, Colton, Calif., at a substantial increase and advancement in departmental responsibilities.

Always active in church and civic affairs, Mr. LaPlante has gained recognition as a teacher, dramatic tenor, designer, interior decorator and painter. In 1969 he taught art in Europe with the World Academy and has spent many a summer hiatus painting in oils and water colors in the areas of Mexico and British Columbia. He has completed several commissioned works for individuals, business concerns and county and state governments. A west coast float for a citrus company won him a top prize. He is also former choir director for St. Catherine of Siena in Rialto, Calif.

Mrs. LaPlante, an accomplished pianist and accompanist, is now retired from her position with the San Bernardino County government.

EUGENE LAPLANTE

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Steele of Miami Beach, Fla., will be visiting in Kingston July 11 to 15. They will be staying at the home of their daughter Mrs. George Matthews at 82 Fair Street. Friends will be able to contact them there.

Many area residents will remember Bob Steele. A decorated World War II hero, former professional wrestler, he was noted for his famous auctions at the business place which bore his name on Route 9W in the Town of Ulster. He retired in 1966 because of ill health.

Congressman and Mrs. Hamilton Fish Jr. were among those attending a recent commencement party for Thomas W. Dalton and John A. Jasinski given at the home of their parents Mr. and Mrs. William T. Dalton in High Falls. Thomas was graduated from St. Peter's School in Rosendale and will be attending John A. Coleman High School in September while John was graduated from John A. Coleman and will join the freshman class at Marist College in the fall. Approximately 175 guests attended the festivities.

Mrs. Jeanne A. Snyder of 7 St. James Court, Kingston, was guest of honor at a recent party given by Ronder and Ronder, Certified Public Accounts on Hurley Avenue. Mrs. Snyder, who was affiliated with Ronder and Ronder for 14 years, retired on Friday, July 2.

She was presented with a diamond wrist watch by Ronder and Ronder. The employees presented her with a pin. Mrs. Snyder is planning a vacation trip.

Festivities during the July 4 weekend at the Jehle residence drew such guests as Mr. and Mrs. Jeffrey Jehle of Bay Ridge; Mr. and Mrs. George G. Jehle Jr., of Brooklyn; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph D'Introno of Queens; Miss Carolyn Jehle of Rutland, Vt.; Robert Jehle of Fort Dix; and Miss Lillian Sember of Kingston.

Miss Linda Jehle, granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. George G. Jehle Sr., of Pine Grove, Saugerties, was graduated from the West Babylon Senior High School on June 26 with the Class of 1971.

Mr. and Mrs. William F. Harnisch of College Point, N.Y., visited also with the Jehle family recently. Mrs. Harnisch is their granddaughter.

Is Nicklaus Throwing It Away?

SOUTHPORT, England (UPI)—Defending champion Jack Nicklaus is throwing away the British open golf championship, which could have been his for the taking.

That is the opinion of five-time winner Peter Thomson of Australia who claims Nicklaus is playing too cautiously and defensively.

"I saw him lose another British Open the same way at Carnoustie in 1968 to South African Gary Player and unless he gets out there in the final two rounds and hits bold strokes he will not win," the Aussie said.

Nicklaus, who has fired two sub-par rounds of 71 for a four under par total of 142, is three strokes off the pace set by happy-go-lucky Mexican American Lee Trevino and Britain's Tony Jacklin.

Trevino and Jacklin, who added 70's Thursday to their opening rounds of 69, head a star-studded tournament leader board. Asian champion Liang Huan Lu trails by one stroke with former winners Argentinian Roberto De Vicenzo and Player have notched eight British and U.S. Open victories between them while the 35-year-old Lu from Taiwan has won practically every tournament on the limited two-months Asian circuit in his 15 years as a professional.

Trevino is confident he can win because of a new found mental attitude of positive thinking to which he credited his second round 70.

"I hit three bogeys in a row to the sixth hole, but knew I could wipe them out with birdies on the par five holes on the back nine," he said.

"I know the law of averages are against me but why can't I win three National Opens in four weeks," he said, referring to his recent victories in the U.S. and Canadian championships.

Jacklin, out of shape since winning the U.S. Open last year, remains co-favorite with Trevino and Nicklaus at 4-1 to take the title.

The 27-year-old Englishman is disappointed with his failure to get birdies in either round on the final two par-five finishing holes.

"That could mean the whole difference to winning or losing the championship," he said.

Lu, who played in the 1967 Masters tournament in his only U.S. appearance, is rated an excellent chance to win.

"Don't underestimate him," He's a great player," said Trevino, who played against him in the World Cup. "This guy could easily hold his own on the U.S. circuit if he ever went there."

EAGLE THREE — U. S. Open Champion Lee Trevino throws his hat in the air as he struts off the green after dropping a 40-foot putt for an eagle, on the last hole, in the second round of the British Open championship in Southport, England Thursday. Trevino's eagle tied him with Tony Jacklin, of Britain, at 139, seven under par. (UPI CABLEPHOTO).

Robinson's 2,500th Hit a Homer

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Chalk up a major milestone for Frank Robinson on the same night that Marcelino Lopez just missed a more modest one.

Robinson poked a three-run homer, the 2,500th hit of his career, helping the Baltimore Orioles to a 7-3 victory over the Washington Senators Thursday night.

Meanwhile, Lopez, a reclamation project from the pitching scrap heap, came within three outs of his first complete game in five years. But the veteran left-hander needed ninth-inning relief help from Ken Sanders to nail down Milwaukee's 2-1 victory over Kansas City.

Elsewhere in the American League Wednesday Detroit trimmed New York 3-1, Boston downed Cleveland 5-3, California took Minnesota 7-4 and Oakland defeated Chicago 4-2.

Robinson, who is the only man in major league history to be named Most Valuable Player in each league, made his milestone hit a memorable one. It was a three-run homer—the 48th homer of his illustrious career which began with Cincinnati 16 seasons ago.

Merv Rettenmund also made a three-run homer for Baltimore and left-hander Mike Cuellar dode the heavy hitting to his 11th consecutive and 13th triumph this season.

Cuellar allowed just six hits and showed no ill effects of the strained neck he suffered when he was involved in an automobile accident Monday night.

Lopez, who has not had a complete game since 1966 when he was pitching for California, nursed a 2-1 Milwaukee lead into the ninth inning against Kansas City. But he was lifted when he walked Fred Patek opening the ninth. Sanders came on to preserve the victory.

Tommy Harper drove in both Brewer runs with a third inning single. Lopez, who hadn't worked beyond six innings in 23 previous appearances this year, struck out seven and walked none.

Two rookies, Detroit pitcher Bill Gilebreth and Boston catcher Bob Montgomery, played key roles in victories for their teams.

Gilebreth earned his second major league victory, limiting New York to three hits and pitching the Tigers to their victory over the Yankees. Bill Freehan drove in two Detroit runs, one with a homer.

Montgomery jolted a two-run homer with two-out in the ninth inning, snapping a tie and moving Boston past Cleveland. The Indians had built a 3-0 lead on Eddie Leon's two-run single and a solo homer by Chuck Hinton. But Boston bounced back with Rico Petrocelli's 14th homer providing one run Duane Josephson and Phil Gagliano knocking in the others.

Unbeaten Chuck Dobson ran his record to 8-0, pitching Oakland past Chicago. Dobson hurled a five-hitter and the A's packed all their scoring into the second inning. Mike Andrews and Bill Melton homered for the White Sox.

Tony Gonzalez cracked a two-run homer and Sandy Alomar drove in two runs with a single as California downed Minnesota. Gonzalez homer snapped a 1-1 tie in the second inning and Alomar's hit came one inning later.

Angels. Williams delivered Don Kessinger into the fifth to sap a 2-2 tie, then drove in Kessinger again in the ninth with a single for an insurance run.

Pirates Discover Another Jewel

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

The talent-rich Pittsburgh Pirates found another jewel for their collection after crowning Cincinnati.

Rookie Bruce Kison, a 21-year-old diamond in the rough with a singing fastball, pitched the Pirates to a 7-1 knockout of the Reds with late relief help Thursday night.

Kison, called up last week from the minors to fill in while Bob Moose is on a two-week army reserve hitch, is getting a closer look from manager Danny Murtaugh after his first major league victory.

While Pittsburgh boosted its National League East lead to seven games over idle New York, San Francisco turned back Houston 4-2, Philadelphia stopped Montreal 7-5 and Chicago tripped Los Angeles 4-2 in other action.

Kison earned a shot at the big time with a 10-1 record at Charleston of the International League. The first time out last week, he gave up three runs in a five inning job against Chicago.

The 6-foot-4, 180-pounder was better Tuesday night, holding the heavy-hitting Reds to three hits and no runs through seven innings before issuing a two-out, bases loaded walk in the eighth. In came Dave Giusti, who silenced Cincinnati for his 18th save.

Bob Robertson's two-run homer capped a four-run first inning as the Pirates sent Don Gullett to his third loss of the season against nine victories. Gullett had won six straight.

Roberto Clemente drove in four runs for the Pirates and Gene Clines stroked four hits.

Keson, a slender right hander, was recently the subject of a national magazine article about life in the low minors.

Bobby Bonds' two-run double keyed a three-run third that carried San Francisco past Houston behind John Cumberland's six-hit pitching. Bonds had earlier singled, stole second and scored on Dick Dietz' single to pull the Giants into a 1-1 tie in the second.

The triumph ended a four-game losing streak for the swooning Giants and cut short a six-game winning string for the Astros.

Tim McCarver delivered a three-run homer with two out in the eighth inning to power Philadelphia.

Prior to McCarver's blast into the right field stands, the Expos had a 5-4 lead on Bob Bailey's three-run homer in the third.

Billy Williams drove in three runs, including the tie-breaking tally with a fifth-inning double, as Chicago completed a sweep of its four-game set with Los

Anderson Picks Clemente

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Cincinnati Manager Sparky Anderson, who will lead the National League in the annual All-Star game at Tiger Stadium in Detroit Tuesday, completed his club today by naming Roberto Clemente to his 11th mid-summer classic.

Anderson, who picked him pitching staff on Wednesday by naming seven right-handers and one left-hander, also added such familiar NL stars as Don Kessinger and Ron Santo of the Chicago Cubs, Pete Rose and Lee May of his own Reds, Felix Millan of the Atlanta Braves, Lou Brock of the St. Louis Cardinals, and Rusty Staub of the Montreal Expos.

Also named were such rising young stars as Bobby Bonds of the San Francisco Giants, Nate Colbert of the San Diego Padres and Manny Sanguillen of the Pittsburgh Pirates. For the three it will mark their first All-Star game.

Of the supplemental entries, Clemente, the Pirates' oldest time super star, was the longest in the line. He has won 100 major league games and 100 major league wins. Only Willie Mays and Hank Aaron, voted to the team by the fans, are older than Clemente and only Mays, with 21 and Aaron, with 20, have more All-Star appearances than Clemente.

Of the others, Tuesday's game will be the seventh for Santo, sixth for Rose, fifth for Staub, fourth for Kessinger, third for Millan and second for Brock and May.

There were no surprise selections by Anderson as he stuck pretty close to the balloting of the fans with the exception of Bonds, who wasn't among the first 10 in voting but won a spot because of his all-around play.

Anderson also picked Manager Walter Alton of the Dodgers, Danny Murtaugh of the Pirates and Preston Gomez of the Padres as his coaches and Leo Hughes of the Giants as trainer.

Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver, who'll handle the American League All-Stars, filled out his team Thursday. Weaver chose Detroit's Norm Cash, who'll start at first in place of the injured Boog Powell, and added four more time super star, was the longest in the line. He has won 100 major league games and 100 major league wins. Only Willie Mays and Hank Aaron, voted to the team by the fans, are older than Clemente and only Mays, with 21 and Aaron, with 20, have more All-Star York Yankees were named as Howard of Washington, Al additional catchers while Bobby Murcer of the Yankees, Don Buford of Baltimore Frank selected as reserve outfielders.

Chief and Lil Abner Wrestling Winners

KINGSTON

Chief White Owl, 256, Cherokee, N.C. and Lil Abner, 240, Arkansas, surrendered the first fall in the feature wrestling bout at the municipal auditorium Thursday night, but rallied to take the next two and the match.

The victims were a couple of real meanies — Eric the Red, a 315-pound import from Denmark, and Kurt Von Hess, the 245-pound bad man from Munich, Germany.

Von Hess and Eric took the first fall in 10 minutes. Chief and Lil Abner scored the equalizer in exactly 15 seconds, when Von Hess and Eric somehow got their signals crossed up.

It took a while to get the boys ready for the third fall but it only lasted six minutes with Chief and Lil Abner scoring the clincher.

Lil Abner made his first appearance of the night in the opening bout, when he pinned Ron Saunders, 240, of California, at the 28-minute mark of a scheduled one-fall, 30-minute contest.

Pete Sanchez, 232, of Monterey, Mexico and The Executioner battled 20 minutes to a draw in the second bout on the card.

Promoter Ted Bayly of Troy did not set any date for a future card in Kingston. However, he announced that he would sponsor the closed TV circuit showing of the Muhammad Ali-Jimmy Ellis heavyweight bout on July 26 at the Palace theatre in Albany.

Eichelberger Is Leader With 64

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI)—Dave Eichelberger isn't against money. In fact, one thing the sweet-swinging, 27-year-old Texan would like to do is win $100,000 on the pro golf tour.

But his even bigger ambition is to win a tournament—something he hasn't done in four years of trying—and he set out today to try once more for that goal.

Eichelberger, a former member of the U.S. Walker Cup team, carried a two-stroke lead into the second round of the fourth annual Greater Milwaukee Open as he—and 80 others—continued to assault par on the 6,548-yard Tripoli Country Club course.

The starting field of 147 will be cut to the lowest 70 and ties after today's round and indications were it would take sub-par golf to survive the cut. A total of 55 pros shattered par and 26 more matched it in the first round.

Eichelberger's 64—seven under—was the most impressive, however, as he birdied five of the final nine holes to take the lead over four others, including 1969 GMO champion Ken Still.

Still, Dan Sikes, Jim Jamieson and Jim King all fired scores of 66 and six more players were bracketed at 67. Six more scored 68 and 13 finished with 69.

Eichelberger said his round was the second best he ever shot on the tour—trailing only the 62 he fired in the final round of the Memphis open this year. He has finished second twice this year, but victory has eluded him.

"I'd like to win $100,000," he said. "But I'd rather win $99,000 and win a tournament than win $100,000."

"I've been close this year and I'm playing better. I don't know why, but I'm hitting the ball better, putting better — and most of all I've got more confidence out there. I don't get upset when I hit a bad shot." He has won $63,232 on the tour this year and is trying for the $25,000 first prize here.

Coughlin No-Hitter Advances Americans

KINGSTON Kevin Coughlin threw nothing but blanks at Rondout Valley in Thursday's Babe Ruth District One Tournament game at Dietz Stadium and when the dust cleared his Kingston American team had a 15-0 win and he had a no-hitter.

Sawyers Beaten

KINGSTON In area high school baseball circles this past season there were few, if any, teams better than the Sawyers of Saugerties. And now that same team, with a couple of exceptions, is competing in the Kingston City League. Only Saugerties is finding the going a little bit rougher this time.

Tournament opens with a tripleheader on Friday, July 30 and continues with first and second round games on July 31, Sunday, Aug. 1 and Friday 6-7-8, with the quarter-finals, semi-finals and finals being held the last weekend.

At Dietz Tonight

Braves Meet Lasers

KINGSTON The Kingston Braves host the Poughkeepsie Lasers at 8 p.m. tonight in Dietz Stadium and at stake is the chance to open up a big gap in the Hudson Valley Rookie League.

Manager Bernie Schaeffer's Braves are 10-2 and lead the league's Northern Division by one and a half games over Poughkeepsie. A win this evening would give Kingston some breathing room at the top, something which it hasn't enjoyed very often in the past.

The Braves are coming off a sparkling 9-0 two-hit shutout authored by Anton "Jim" Shomaker over Minisink on Wednesday night. Kingston had a week's rest in a strange scheduling quirk but the payoff didn't hurt the team's effectiveness.

Now with the Lasers coming to town the Braves are in an enviable position. Poughkeepsie is reeling from a recent and surprising defeat to Middletown and Kingston will be looking to catch the Dutchess County team while its down.

Tom Gallo is expected to get the call on the mound tonight.

Monorail Plans . . . Chamber Keeping Close Watch

By JON POWERS

KINGSTON
The Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce is keeping close watch on the still speculative plans of a Utica firm to build a high speed monorail system connecting Buffalo with New York City.

Although the monorail plans have not yet even reached the drawing board stages, the local Chamber of Commerce has already taken some action to assure that Kingston is not left standing on the wrong side of the tracks.

There are two plans now under "consideration" by the North American Monorail Corp. of Utica. One calls for the laying of "track" from Buffalo to New York City on property now owned by the New York State Thruway Authority, which would necessarily mean that the monorail would run along the west bank of the Hudson River, and possibly through a portion of Kingston.

The second plan would have the monorail cross the Hudson near Albany and proceed down the east bank of the river, through communities like Hudson, Rhinebeck and Poughkeepsie.

The Chamber of Commerce, naturally, favors the first plan, primarily because of the business and convenience it would bring directly to the Kingston community. The effect of a monorail in Dutchess County would have on Kingston, it is contended, would be negligible.

Len Cane, executive vice president of the Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce, cited several other reasons why not only Kingston, but the monorail system itself, would benefit by following the Thruway route.

First, said Cane, the land is already available on the west side of Hudson, referring to between the Thruway's two lanes of traffic. The firm, instead, would probably have to lease or purchase new land if the eastern route were selected.

Cane also noted that a monorail system on the eastern side of the Hudson would serve only a relatively small section of New York State. He pointed out that the heaviest concentration of population is located on the Kingston side of the river, meaning that the monorail's services would be available to a greater number of people.

Cane said there was little prospect that a monorail would be built on both sides of the river, serving communities along the way.

As a result, the battle lines are being drawn, and the stakes are significantly worthy. It is estimated that the monorail system would bring an additional 75,000 jobs to the communities it serves, not to mention the increased business and greater accessibility. It is also projected that at each stop along the monorail (although Cane said that it is highly possible that Kingston would not be a stopping point) the station complexes would include hotels, offices, stores, restaurants, meeting facilities and underground parking.

So the Chamber is now moving to get its share of what could be very sizeable piece of cake. Cane indicated that a preliminary meeting on the topic has already been held and that the legislative action and business and industrial development committees of the Chamber of Commerce will be meeting soon to detail a plan of attack should the proposed monorail system become a reality.

Special

indications that the monorail's builders may be considering installing the system either directly adjacent to the Thruway or on the dividing land

Grand Union Proposal Heads For Resolution

RHINEBECK
The thorny problem of granting a special permit to Grand Union for constructing a shopping center north of this village appears headed for resolution.

Arthur Carl, Chairman of the Zoning Board of Appeals which held a public hearing on the matter Wednesday night, told The Freeman that his own personal opinion was that there did not appear to be any insoluble problems in evidence.

The Board of Appeals will hold another meeting July 21 to consider the copious notes taken at that hearing and possibly arrive at some decision. This board is the final arbiter, as the question need not go before any body if approved.

Carl said that, while he could not speak for any of the other board members, he felt that minor problems on internal traffic, landscaping, and drainage would tie up the package.

Elucidating these details, which he said "can be worked out," Carl explained that the traffic flow within the parking lot would have to be spelled out more clearly; that the matter of landscaping with regard to such things as trees should be more closely defined; and that some arrangement on water drainage of the asphalt parking lot must be agreed upon.

The Grand Union proposal of a 24,000 square foot store on Route 9, Astor Flats, is the first major commercial proposal before the town since the inception of the zoning law this spring.

Future indefinite plans include several smaller stores in this area, as well as possibly a large discount store.

VILLAGE GREEN APARTMENTS — The first apartment complex in the Village of Rhinebeck in recent history is underway. Wappingers developers are Richard Rosenberg and Saul Silver, and it has been reported that some of the units may be ready before the snow flies. The entrance is on Route 9 in the northern part of the village. (Freeman photo by Kruh).

NEW PALTZ

The Town of New Paltz is unhappy over the plan of the 60 to 70 per cent of its share. Planning Board of the Town of Lloyd which falls within the New Paltz Central School District for a trailer park. The New Paltz Town Board will probably officially go on record to that effect at its Wednesday July 14 meeting.

New Paltz Town Supervisor Anthony J. Moriello said it was the opinion of the town board that the Lloyd action was not a "fair action." He felt the board would go on record in support of the New Paltz Central School District, which is very much opposed to the trailer park plan.

Moriello said there may be a legal question involved. The Lloyd action would effect the tax structure of the New Paltz School District; the vast majority of the district's residents would have no say in the move affecting them. This might be grounds for a successful court action, should Lloyd go through with the plan, said Moriello.

Moriello said trailers generally pay only .11 per cent tax share in a school district, while a house would pay from 60 to 70 per cent of its share. He said this was a prime reason why trailers were so unpopular in a community.

Other than possible legal recourse, the town of New Paltz is not going into the battle to that effect at its Wednesday July 14 meeting.

A section of New Paltz is located in the Highland School District. If this section of New Paltz were zoned for trailers, the Highland School District, which services most of Lloyd, would also have its tax structure adversely affected.

Moriello said he hoped it would not come to that. He said he hoped the planning boards of both towns could meet on the question, and reach a fair solution.

If they don't, it could be the war of the trailer parks, a war which would have no winners, only mutual losers.

Two Hearings Set By Rhinebeck Board

RHINEBECK
The Rhinebeck Town Board will precede its regular monthly meeting Wednesday evening with two public hearings on public gatherings and rezoning for cable television.

At 7:30 p.m. an amendment to the zoning law to permit Kingston Cablevision to install its antenna and head-end for transmission on Tator Hill, to ultimately serve Northern Dutchess County, will be put before the public.

The area is currently zoned residential, and a zoning change would have to be granted. The company is reportedly anxious to get moving on its plans. It has contracted with five municipalities: the towns of Red Hook and Rhinebeck and the villages of Red Hook, Rhinebeck, and Tivoli.

An 8 p.m. hearing will be held on a revised version of the public gathering law proposed to the public before. It would regulate gatherings of persons in excess of 2,500.

The major objections in the previous hearing dealt with the alleged discrimination against rock music festivals, as the proposed law specifically alluded to rock festivals under several names and did not specify any other gatherings, although it was inclusive.

This section of the proposal has been changed to read any gatherings in excess of 2,500 without specific designations as to their nature.

These two matters, plus a proposed dog law, are expected to be dealt with by the Town Board during its regular session following the hearings.

Health Clinic Case Now a Court Issue

By WADE BURKHART

ELLENVILLE
The intermunicipal warfare among those who would control the Southern Ulster Mental Health Clinic in Ellenville has taken a new turn.

The battle is going to court. Mrs. Audrey Greene, the head of the insurgent board of directors, which was elected at the clinic's annual meeting after its president, Eugene Glusker, had adjourned it because of failure to recognize a quorum, had a show cause order served on Glusker Wednesday.

The order was answerable in State Supreme Court, Monticello, today. Glusker must show cause why he should not vacate his position to Mrs. Greene.

The action was apparently prompted by a statement by the original board that it was resuming control "after an intensive investigation . . . concluded that the attempt to take over the Mental Health Clinic with a new board of directors was not a legal act."

The statement said, "This move is necessary to prevent the clinic from closing."

Glusker told The Freeman that in a meeting with state and county officials, he was told by County Legislator Melvin Mones (R-City), head of the legislature's Public Health Committee, and Peter Kohler, representing the New York State Department of Mental Health, that state and county funds would be withdrawn if Mrs. Greene was associated with the clinic.

Glusker had asked Mrs. Greene to resign her position as treasurer of the clinic prior to the annual meeting.

Glusker told The Freeman "Mrs. Greene may not believe it, but I pleaded with them not to withdraw the funds."

He noted that at no time had there been criticism of the running of the clinic.

"I am willing to step aside to anyone willing and able to do the job," Glusker told The Freeman.

When asked if "anyone" included Mrs. Greene, Glusker said, "Apparently not."

Residents Upset Over Water Issue

RED HOOK
While several Village of Red Hook residents are not satisfied with the disposition of the water fund probe, and are planning to vocalize their opinions at Monday's board meeting, several village officials who spoke with The Freeman expressed satisfaction with the results.

The results were that Village Clerk Francis Rabbett was given a conditional discharge in Town Court on the misdemeanor charge of official misconduct.

Several village residents have expressed dismay at the results of the wheels of justice and one, Charles Mobley, has asked that members of the village board be polled at Monday's meeting "as to how they stand on the dismissal of Mr. Rabbett from all duties of the village . . ."

Spiro Agnew Takes Holiday

JEDDAH, Saudi Arabia (UPI)—Vice President Spiro T. Agnew took a day off today from his round of talks with heads of state. He had only two engagements on his schedule.

The vice president was meeting with members of the American community in Saudi Arabia and tonight was dining with Prince Fahd, second deputy prime minister and interior minister.

Thursday night Agnew was guest of honor at a dinner hosted by King Faisal. Earlier, the two met for two hours and held a "mutual exchange of views" on the Middle East situation, an Agnew spokesman said.

The meeting, which had only minutes, was held at the Hamra Palace overlooking the Red Sea. The spokesman said the two discussed mostly Arab-Israeli relations.

The vice president brought up no new proposals at any time on the Middle East during the discussions, according to the spokesman.

The city's medical examiners' office said 714 persons were murdered between Jan. 1 and the end of June, as compared to 548 persons during the same period last year.

Most of the deaths resulted from spontaneous arguments in the home by persons who knew each other. A majority of the victims were black.

The statistics said 367 of the victims were shot, 223 were stabbed, 19 were strangled, 61 were assaulted and 44 died by other means.

Lead Singer for The Doors Secretly Buried in Paris

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Jim Morrison, 27, lead singer of "The Doors" rock group famous for his outrageous stage appearances, died and was secretly buried in Paris, France, his manager and public relations firm said Thursday.

Bill Siddons, Morrison's manager, said a funeral had already been conducted in France. He said the initial news of Morrison's death was kept secret "to avoid the notoriety and circus-like atmosphere that surrounded the death of such other rock personalities as Janis Joplin and Jimi Hendrix."

Morrison died Saturday of natural causes while sleeping, said a spokesman for Gershman, Gibson and Stronger Public Relations.

"The Doors" was formed in Los Angeles in 1965 and went to the top of the rock charts with "Break On Through." That song was followed by "Light My Fire," which brought the group international popularity.

But Morrison's stage antics caused the group to be banned in several cities. He once was arrested in Miami, Fla., for using obscene language and exposing himself during an appearance.

The group's latest single was "Riders On the Storm."

Siddons, who said he arrived in Los Angeles from Paris Thursday night, said: "I can say that Jim died peacefully of natural causes. He had been in Paris since March with his wife Pamela. He had seen a doctor in Paris about a respiratory problem and had complained of this problem on Saturday, the day of his death."

Siddons said the singer was "buried in a simple ceremony with only a few friends present."

Your Horoscope

Saturday, July 10

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You are all stirred up about getting your own way, but can prevent arguments or accidents and succeed better if you stop, look and listen before going after what you now want so much. Relax, think about how to please others first.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You can be too demanding with good friends today and lose their favor if you are not careful. Don't permit a cut or a bruise to go untended. Avoid one who has designs on your mate.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) This is a bad day to go to a higher-up in an irate mood; such an action could hurt you. Following every regulation that applies to you is wise now. Do some reading tonight and keep out of trouble.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You are tempted to kick up a fuss about your work and run off on some foolish tangent, but you would be wise to cool off and do things right. Plan how to get ahead faster. Study new outlets.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Do whatever you can to get your obligations behind you quickly and satisfactorily this day away from office. Although there may be strained relations between you and mate, show courtesy and affection. Take it easy in p.m.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Although you do not approve of what partner is doing, so long as it does not affect you, it is his or her business. Not a good day to fight with one who opposes you. Diplomacy is the best policy now.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Instead of throwing in the sponge, as you are inclined to do, put your routines in better order and succeed where you thought you failed. Improve health also. Take right treatments.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You have time for recreation at last, but take care you do not spend your money unwisely. Do something to assist those in trouble. Be particularly kind to deserving relatives and redeem yourself with them.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You are in a bad mood and want to make more trouble at home, so think and be kind instead. Kin are under tension also and need your kind advice, thoughts. Turn potential trouble into benefits for all, yourself included.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You want to dash around hither and yon without any definite purpose in mind, which would be just wasting valuable time. Get busy finishing uncompleted tasks instead. Don't make unkind remarks to others.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Instead of worrying about financial affairs, get busy doing whatever will add to present income and make repairs to property that will increase value and comfort. Analyze your position accurately. You may be better off than you think.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Refrain from trying to force associates to do what you want them to, since you could be highly excited about something that is not as worthwhile as you think. Don't let pressures cause you to act unkindly toward others.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20) You want to get those private plans in operation immediately, but study them a little more first. A friend comes to you with some problem that requires time to solve. Give only preliminary advice.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY he or she will have need for controlled exercise at sports instead of trying to expend energies on whatever is not worthwhile or good as it is up to you.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

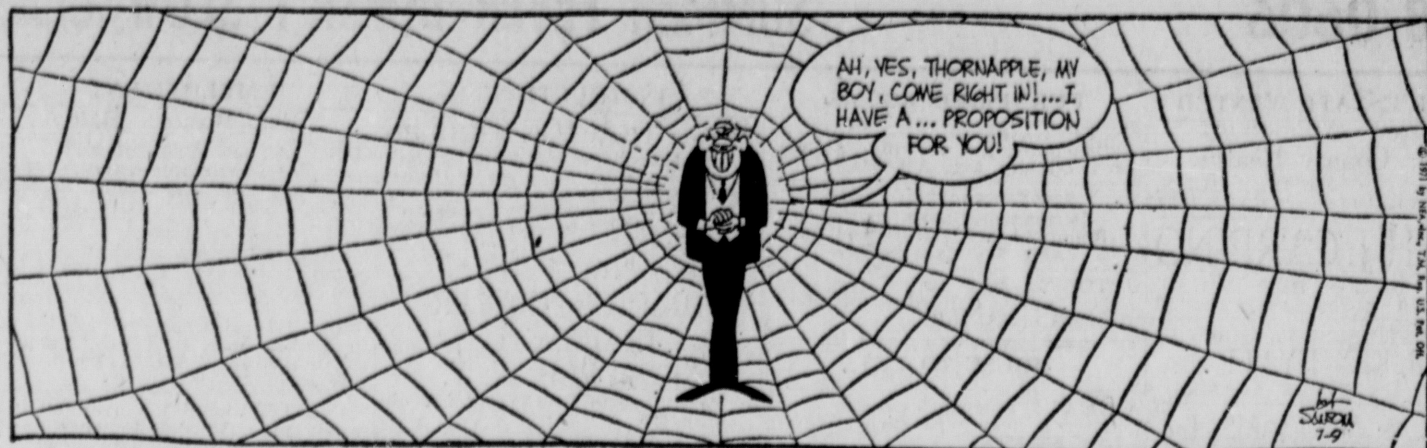

Viewers in Great Britain saw a "blue moon" on the night of Sept. 26, 1950. The World Almanac notes that the phenomenon was caused by sulphur particles in the upper atmosphere from a vast forest fire in British Columbia, Canada. The moon also appeared a bluish color following the eruption of the volcano Krakatoa in 1883.

Jean Adams' TEEN FORUM

COPIED: (Q) My friend's parents both work and her grandparents send her money. As a result, she can buy about anything she really wants.

I like her, but sometimes I envy her. She can be self-centered and downright nasty, but it is hard not to like her. I want to be different from her. I have stopped copying the way she dresses and am working on my own style. I got a wig and clogs. She said she didn't like them, but she bought some almost exactly like them.

I also bought some oriental things, and she did, too.

I stopped copying her. Now how can I get her to stop copying me? I want to be myself. -14 in Washington, Pa.

(A) Don't be troubled about being copied. Instead, be complimented that your friend respects your judgement and taste.

Being copied does not limit your individuality so long as you are sincere and natural and honest, and have a genuine interest in other people.

You must, of course, see them as people—not rivals to outdo.

BIG FRECKLES: (Q) I wrote you about two freckles below my bottom lip. You suggested make-up. It works but not long enough. I put it on in the morning and it's off by 10 a.m.

I'm sending you a picture of myself. I want to go to the dermatologist but the nearest one is three hours away and Mother doesn't want to make the trip for nothing. What do you think?—Self conscious in Montana.

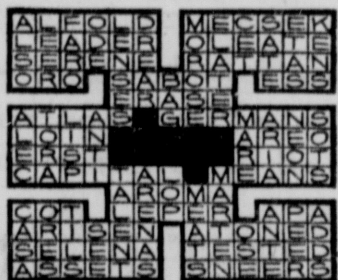

(A) You seem to have two rather extensive areas of freckly pigmentation on your chin. The dermatologist can probably remove them. Make an appointment with the dermatologist by telephone and take the three-hour trip right away. I believe you'll be glad you did.

'Laugh-In' Producer Returns

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Paul W. Keyes is back at "Laugh-In" as producer, ending an 18-month walkout that followed a dispute over the comedy and direction of the show.

He quit in October 1969 and called the show "slandered, vulgar and dirty."

Keyes, a bearish, deep tanned man with horn-rimmed glasses and silvery hair, said in a recent interview, "I left 18 months ago over a disagreement and I was told a few months ago the cause of the disagreement is gone. I thought the show was dirty at the time and it no longer is."

"I have a feeling about sex and it's this," he said. "On balance, you can be naughty but not dirty. When a mother tells her kids to get away from the set and says it's dirty, you're through. I'll do a smart, risqué joke in a monologue for Dan and Dick and the kids won't know what you're talking about."

Dan Rowan and Dick Martin are the stars of the fast-paced NBC comedy show.

Keyes denied at the time of his resignation that it had anything to do with his friendship with President Nixon. He said he had not been under White House pressure to stop sniping at the President because he did not think there had been any.

Lighting up a large black cigar, Keyes said, "The writers asked me when I came back, does this mean we can't do any more Nixon jokes? I said, let's her kids to get away from the set and says it's dirty, you're through. I'll do a smart, risqué joke in a monologue for Dan and Dick and the kids won't know what you're talking about."

One of the guests on the first show of the fall season will be Martha Mitchell, wife of Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell. She will do cameos with lines that Keyes said "will be appropriate to her style."

Keyes said that despite the rumors he has never written a joke for a speech by Vice President Spiro T. Agnew. "Everybody says I wrote his lines but me," he said.

Does he write for the President? "On the Jack Paar show years ago I wrote some lines for him," Keyes said. "Through the years I've given him lines to get a laugh in a speech."

Halt War or Change Strategy, Giap View

Hanoi: U. S. Trapped in Endless Tunnel

LONDON (UPI)—North Vietnamese military mastermind Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap said in an interview released today the United States has trapped itself in a "tunnel without end" in Vietnam. Giap said America has only two choices: "Stop the war or change strategy."

Giap, Hanoi's defense minister, said President Nixon's Vietnamization policy is "the concept of changing the skin color of the corpses at the front."

He predicted "total bankruptcy" for the program. United Press International Television News (UPI-TV) said the rare interview was made by East German television recently in Hanoi. It was distributed by UPI-TV's London headquarters.

Giap, 59, a former history teacher credited with being the brains behind the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong military strategy in South Vietnam, said the United States has failed to learn despite its constant changing of strategy from green beret counter-insurgency operations to massive bombing of North Vietnam.

"Thus America now finds itself trapped in a tunnel without end and sees only two alternatives—stop the war or a change of strategy," Giap said.

Giap said the simplest answer was for the United States to pull all its troops out of Vietnam.

"If the U.S. imperialists stop their aggression fully and of Vietnamization" is "a completely and finally with concept of pursuing the war" draw from Vietnam, then there further.

The South Vietnamese command said the base, five miles south of the DMZ separating North and South Vietnam, took an undetermined number of 120mm mortar rounds.

Vietnamese troops sent to rebuild fortifications after Fuller was overrun and destroyed by North Vietnamese troops two weeks ago suffered casualties described as light.

hands five times after the Communists overran it and its system of bunkers and other fortifications were blown up not only by the attacking North Vietnamese but by intensive American fighter-bomber and helicopter strikes.

The new attacks against Fuller followed reports of a raid by South Vietnamese elite Black Panther troops against a Communist truck storage area and supply zone 24 miles south of the DMZ Thursday. It followed a three-hour series of raids on the same area by U.S. B52 bombers and jet fighter-bombers.

The South Vietnamese commandos uncovered 12 tons of anti-aircraft shells, 22,000 pounds of rice, three new Soviet-made trucks, 18 drums of gasoline, six anti-aircraft guns and other materiel.

Capital Ponders The Red Shift

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials say the Nixon administration is pondering the significance of a surprise new shift in the latest peace offensive launched by Vietnamese Communist leaders.

The shift is in the form of a demand for the ouster of only President Nguyen Van Thieu from any future South Vietnamese government ready to negotiate an end of the war.

Previously North Vietnamese and Viet Cong leaders had insisted that not only Thieu, but Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky and Prime Minister Tran Thien Khiem, as well, would be unacceptable in a post-war government.

"For years Communist delegates at the Paris peace talks have been calling for removal of the Thieu-Ky-Khiem clique," one diplomatic informant said. "They practically pronounced 'Thieu-Ky-Khiem' as one word. Now they've begun speaking only of Thieu."

The shift in the Communist position emerged after Madame Nguyen Thi Binh presented the Viet Cong's latest peace package at the Paris conference July 1. The proposal was for release of all prisoners held by the Communists in the North and South by the year's end, concurrent with withdrawal of all U.S. troops. Her precise words:

"The U.S. government must really respect the South Vietnamese people's rights to self-determination, put an end to its interference in the internal affairs of South Vietnam, cease backing the bellicose group headed by Nguyen Van Thieu at present in office in Saigon, and stop all maneuvers, including tricks on elections, aimed at maintaining the puppet Nguyen Van Thieu."

Five days later Le Duc Tho, senior North Vietnamese representative in Paris, endorsed Madame Binh's proposal and in an interview with the New York Times hammered away at Thieu—and Thieu only. He said in part:

"Although it is not admitted... the whole world knows that Thieu has been put in power by the U.S. administration. And the United States will have the decisive voice in the forthcoming elections."

Therefore if Mr. Nixon is really disposed to settle the whole problem of the war... the question of change of the ruling group now in office in Saigon—headed by Thieu—is in the power of the United States... The forthcoming election in South Vietnam is an opportunity for Mr. Nixon to change Thieu."

Japan Nuclear Role Could Split Cabinet

WASHINGTON (AP) — The possibility of a nuclear role for Japan has touched a raw nerve in the Nixon administration with indications of a Cabinet-level split over the issue.

The State Department Thursday volunteered a statement to newsmen, saying reports of a potential Japanese deployment of nuclear weapons came from "cloudy and uncertain" sources.

Department spokesman Charles W. Bray said it was his understanding that Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird was not the source of the reports.

Nonetheless, it was learned the State Department asked for the transcript of a background news briefing given newsmen by American officials in Tokyo covering the nuclear issue.

Laird is in Tokyo for talks on Japanese military policy.

Also, a high official who asked to be left unidentified said Laird had declined a State Department briefing on effects of the nuclear nonproliferation treaty on Japan, which signed the pact last year amid strong controversy.

Bray opened his daily meeting with newsmen with a statement that included:

"We know of no responsible body of opinion in Japan or the United States that advocates nuclear arms for Japan or even foresees their necessity or possibility."

The Tokyo reports said the American officials had predicted Japan might deploy nuclear weapons by the 1980s because of Chinese missile progress and the possibility the U.S. nuclear position might be restrained by an arms-limitation agreement with the Soviet Union.

Another indication of the State Department's deep concern over the reports was an unusual delay in the opening of Bray's daily session with newsmen. Officials later said this was the result of a lengthy telephone conversation with Secretary of State William P. Rogers at the California White House. Rogers, who is with President Nixon, cleared the strongly worded statement read by Bray, the official said.

Although he has never spoken directly to the issue of Japan and nuclear weapons, Laird is known to feel Tokyo must assume a stronger military position in Asia as the United States reduces its role in that part of the world.

The matter of Laird's reported rejection of a briefing on the nonproliferation treaty assumes importance in view of Bray's pointed reminder Thursday that Japan has signed the pact, which prohibits acquisition or deployment of atomic arms by nonnuclear nations.

The situation, at least in the eyes of some Japanese, is not as clear as outlined in the State Department position.

There was considerable opposition in Japan to signing the nonproliferation treaty. Business leaders, scientists and political opponents of the Tokyo government protested the nation should not bind itself to never developing a nuclear capability.

Japanese Prime Minister Eisaku Sato said at the time of the February 1970 signing there would be no hurry in ratifying the agreement.

Sato said ratification would be considered "prudently" with regard to Japan's national interests.

Nixon administration concern over the issue underlines an even deeper worry that a decision by a nation such as Japan not to ratify the treaty would have a snowball effect, with other governments feeling it has to be all or none.

Secrecy Off Foreign Aid Figures

WASHINGTON (AP) — The once-shunned Greek military government would get $117 million in U.S. arms aid this fiscal year under Nixon administration proposals whose secrecy label has been lifted for the first time.

The State Department, which traditionally has kept individual aid amounts secret, released the new figures today after Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., threatened to publicize them on his own unless the administration could show why they should be withheld.

The country-by-country breakdown shows how the United States plans to spend

$2.3 billion in military assistance, military credit sales and excess military materiel in the fiscal year that began July 1.

Greece, whose aid was shut off after a military coup in April 1967, would get $19.8 million in direct military aid, $60 million in arms sales and $38 million in excess U.S. military supplies and equipment.

President Nixon resumed the military aid program to Greece last September, citing Greek membership in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and its strategic position on Europe's southern flank.

Proxmire said figures were supplied for 43 nations.

"Although the State Department made no argument that the military security of the United States was at stake," Proxmire said, the amounts for six Middle East countries and the Philippines will not be released until later because of delicate negotiations now under way.

The figures made available show total foreign military assistance of $731.5 million, military credit sales of $582 million and economic supporting assis-
